Moral Focus is a program unique to NHA schools. We believe education goes beyond academics so we focus on developing the "whole" student. Learn more about our Moral Focus program below. Interested in touring Emerson Academy in Dayton? We invite you to schedule a tour! Learn more about our personalized teaching, moral focus program, extracurricular activities, athletics, and more. We are excited to welcome you to our school and learn more about you and your student. Schedule a Tour At Emerson Academy, we're here to help children grow and succeed. We answer the important question "are students learning" by measuring student success in a number of ways. This gives our principal, deans, and teachers information they can turn into action. NHA Academics Parents are encouraged to support their students to focus on these virtues both at school and at home! Feel free to ask your student the questions above throughout the months, helping to keep them top of mind and to learn their importance beyond the classroom. When everyone is practicing our Moral Focus Virtues, it makes our schools safe and caring places to learn and grow. Outside the classroom, it reinforces the strong moral values that help children interact with their friends, families, and communities with respect and care. If you're wondering when your child can start school, you're not alone! Every state has its own minimum age requirements, and they vary. NHA operates schools with kindergarten programs across nine states. Use our kindergarten calculator to help determine when your child can start at an NHA school. Philosophy/Belief Statement: National Heritage Academies (NHA) and Emerson Academy of Dayton are guided by a few key principles: first, we believe that a school environment with high academic and social expectations is necessary for students to thrive; second, NHA and Emerson believes that parents have the ultimate responsibility for their children's education and, thus, will choose what is best for their children; third, we believe that a school should support and reinforce the moral guidance a child receives at home; and lastly, we believe that a child's self-esteem is developed through diligence and achievement. School History: National Heritage Academies (NHA) purchased the 5th - 8th Grade Dayton Christian School Building in the spring of 2004. Emerson School was named after Ralph Waldo Emerson, a famous poet and writer. Dayton Public Schools built Emerson as a K-8 building in 1924 to replace the original school building. The original building, built in 1864, stood in the parking lot west of the current school building. NHA, in keeping with local tradition, named the school Emerson Academy of Dayton.
