Source: FOX "What if everything we've been made to believe is a lie?"In the middle of the premiere of the miniseries The X-Files, Fox Mulder (David Duchovny) asks Dana Scully (Gillian Anderson) this critical question. He talks about his understanding of the government's cover-up of alien life forms. But somehow, it seems like you're not just asking your former FBI partner to consider this dangerous possibility. He is asking the X-Philes devotees to accept him too. This idea that Mulder and Scully may have been deceived during their time at the FBI seems to be the driving force behind the resurgence of the X-Files. It is risky, shaking the ancient mythology of the series, but it is a necessary and convincing move. Although the premiere, directed and written by X-Files creator Chris Carter, is far from perfect, it is intriguing. The show doesn't waste time bringing us up to date. After providing a quick and dirty overview that helps bring in newbies while giving devoted fans a pleasant feeling of nostalgia... we dropped in Roswell in 1947, where an anonymous doctor witnessed the infamous UFO accident. So, it's 2016, and we have our first glimpse of our beloved heroes. Scully is now a surgeon; Mulder seems happy to live off the net. It seems that time and Mulder's depressive episodes have separated them. But they meet up with conspiracy theorist and internet troublemaker Tad O'Neil (an effectively elusive Joel McHale), who is pretty sure he has some explosive information about the government and its inclination to cover up alien activity. Malley takes Mulder and Scully to Sveta (Annet Mahendru, of the Americans), who claims to have been abducted and impregnated by aliens on multiple occasions. And their conversations with the young woman "who has equal parts scared and determined to be heard" lead them to a whole of unexpected revelations. Source: FOX Scully has alien DNA in its system. And the government has got Using alien technology he recovered from Roswell for his own insidious purposes. And they're trying to use it to take control of everybody. Yes, it's a lot to take in, especially in an hour. And this deluge of information is, overall, the biggest flaw of the premiere. The X-Files have always excelled at mixing the paranormal tradition of the real world with its own rich mythology. And the miniseries do their best to provide a modern backdrop for Mulder and Scully's new tribulations. In just a few minutes, O'Neil's name abandons Edward Snowden and invokes 9/11 and the Patriot Act, setting the show into the 21st century. It is an important part of the reboot value proposition, but it has been given too much weight in the first episode. As a result, the premiere spends so much time trying to convince us that The X-Files is still relevant that it gets stuck in its own reinvented mythology. Stimulation suffers, as do Mulder and Scully's chances of interacting without the burden of prolonged exposure. Even so, despite these mistakes, the premiere manages to create a pretty powerful momentum for the rest of the miniseries. In the final moments of the episode, we see Cigarette-Smoking Man (William B. Davis) (!!!!!) looking sickly but as insidious as ever, announcing that the X-Files have been reopened. There is a lot at stake. There is a clear target for Mulder and Scully, one with a potentially explosive resolution. And with new characters to explore and old favorites to get back to, the latest X-Files adventure gives fans new and bigger reasons to stay and see what happens next. More from Entertainment Cheat Sheet: Ethan Hawke, Winona Ryder, Janeane Garofalo and Steve Zahn in Apathetic, loose lazy... Generation X, which falls between Boomers and Millennials and whose members were born between 1965 and 1980, has not always been in the most pleasant terms. Let's go over some of the movie titles released when Generation X was coming of age and learning to deal with adult life and the tedious, low-paid jobs from 9 to 5. And let's see what "apart from cynicism, anguish, broken jeans and grunge music" defined the disaffected generation that Winona Ryder, Ethan Hawke, Julie Delpy and Keanu Reeves gave us.Please note that, at the time of the performance, this list might seem little different. Not for nothing, Generation X has been accused of biasing whites and heterosexuals and of overrepresenting whites in their twenties with a college education. We strive to achieve some balance with selection.Do the Right Thing (1989) Photo courtesy: [Universal Pictures] Spike Lee wrote, directed, produced and even had a role in this film set on a scorching summer day in Brooklyn. When the owner of the American-Italian pizzeria in the heart of the movie's majority Black Quarter refuses to hang photos of black leaders on his Wall of Fame, conflict arises. Lee managed to capture the discontent and struggles of a younger generation while portraying police brutality and the many complexities of race relations. Photo courtesy: [New World Pictures] Of course, the large hair and the larger shoulder pads the Heathers have here are reminiscent of an 80's look that will soon go out of fashion. Generation X icons Christian Slater and Winona Ryder star in this dark comedy about high school cliques and bullying that became a cult classic. She is Veronica, the only non-Heather among the bad and popular Heathers. This is J.D., the mysterious and eternally dressed in dark colors and grungy-pants new high school student of Veronica. She has feelings for him and realizes that he is also very much in love with her. But J.D. definitely has a More evil than Veronica could have imagined. Pump Up the Volume (1990) Photo courtesy: [New Line Cinema] Christian Slater is back in high school in this teen movie in which he plays Mark Hunter, a young man and a young man. Shy teenager who deals with a double life. By night Mark is the hostess of a pirate radio station in which she gets involved in long and distressed monologues about how "the big themes have already been sold out, turned into theme parks" and how it doesn't, we hope for the future because the 90s are a sold out decade so there's nothing to wait and no one to admire ". No one knows who is the voice on the radio. But Mark's words are surely felt to the attention of the Rebellious Nora (Samantha Mathis), who also happen her falling in love. "Why I can't fall in love", played by Ivan Neville and "The World Knows" by Leonard Cohen, for a very timely soundtrack that also features themes from Pixies and Sonic Youth.Point Break (1991) Photo courtesy: [20th Century Fox] This is certainly the most adrenaline fuel title on the list. Academy award-winning Kathryn Bigelow heads up this action capacity in which undercover FBI agent Johnny Utah (Keanu Reeves) infiltrates a group of surfers led by Bodhi (Patrick Swayze) as he tries to identify a gang of bank robbers believed to be surfers. Waves, perfect fans, surfers' culture, people jumping from planes with and without parachutes, and the precise thefts of 90 seconds make a movie about discontent and after a dream. In addition, Keanu Reeves perfects the art of the one-line chicken with dialogue like "Is the FBI going to pay me to learn how to surf?" And I "caught my first tube" this morning, sir". Reality Tenders (1994) Photo courtesy: [Universal images] If we had to choose just one film to encapsulate how Generation X felt in the 90s, it would probably be this one. Winona Ryder plays Lelaina, a college valedictory who is trying to navigate his life as an adult and who wants to have a career as a documentary filmmaker. Ethan Hawke is Troy, the best of Lelaina and perennial Slacker. Ben Stiller, who also directed the movie, plays Michael, a convertible driving, convertible. who works at a television station like MTV. Lelaina is filming Troy and friends Vickie (Janeane Garofalo) and Sammy (Steve Zahn), pursuing her passion for documentaries and trying to capture the struggles of her generation. She also has a relationship with Michael and tries to understand if a kind of platonic friendship with Troy is all there is for them.Clueless (1995) Photo courtesy: [Paramount Pictures] This modern shot of Jane Austen, Emma, set in the 1990s in Beverly Hills and written and directed by Amy Heckerling. Alicia Silverstone plays the ultra-rich and privileged Cher, one of the most popular girls in her high school. He has a good heart, but he has no idea when it comes to not judging a book by its cover. Stacey Dash plays Cher's best friend, Dionne, and Brittany Murphy is Tai, the new girl at school and Cher's new project Cher believes that Tai needs a makeover and a better taste in the boys. There is also a story in which teenager Cher ends up attracted by her ex-brother Josh (Paul Rudd), who has not necessarily aged well. But Clueless is still a classic when it comes to advanced technology of the 90s (brick cell phones and software that coordinates your outfits), fashion (play with skirts of pictures and blazers!) and slang. Before Dawn (1995) Photo courtesy: [Columbia Pictures] Richard Linklater (Boyhood) directed and co-wrote this short story about American tourist Jesse (Ethan Hawke) and French CÃline (Julie Delpy). They meet on a Eurail train and decide to disembark in Vienna and spend a night together chatting and getting to know the city Ã and each other. The romantic film is basically a series of conversations between the two young men and their reflections on life.In Linklater's true form, the filmmaker meets with Delpy and Hawke every decade for the sequels Before Sunset (2004) and Before Midnight (2013) that at the relationship between Jesse and CÃline.trainspotting (1996) Photograph photography Danny Boyle directed this film and basically put on the map the actors Ewan McGregor, Kevin McKidd, Johnny Lee Miller and Kelly MacDonald. Based on an Irvine's galaja novel, the film follows a group of friends and heroine addicts living in the suburbs of Edinburgh. McGregor plays Trenton, a 26-year-old boy who lives with her parents and has no perspective in life. In addition to his comment on how to choose life in an overwhelming world of consumerism, the film also has the kind of soundtrack Ã«with Iggy Pop themes, Blur, Lou Reed and Elastic» that would become a benchmark in myself. MartÃn (HACHE) (1997) Photo courtesy: [Strand Release / YouTube] We are going to add a Hispanic-Argentina co-producing to the mix. When the teenage hache (Juan Diego Botto) suffers an overdose in Buenos Aires, his mother's mother decides that it is time for him to spend for a while with his father MartÃn (Federico Luppi) in Madrid. Hache, that the parents of him think that he could have tried to commit suicide, not long ago and is obsessed mainly with the ex of him, the guitar of him and getting dirt. MartÃn and Hache have long conversations about literature and the meaning of longing your country of origin. Ã e IT are your friends. And that is what you miss, but vanishes. "says the expatriate MartÃn. Coescribed and directed by Adolfo Aristarain, the film explores the idea of identity and to find oneself from the perspective of Hache, which debates between two cities and two different possibilities in life. High Fidelity (2000) Photo courtesy: [Strand Releasing / YouTube] Terminate with this story based on a novel by Nick Hornby and directed by Stephen Frears. John Cusack plays Rob, the developed owner of a separate disc store in Chicago. Rob and the employees of him, the cheeky Barry (Jack Black) and the knowledgeable Dick (Todd Lousia), take the melomanity and musical snobpering too seriously. But through them, we listen to everything of good songs like Ã«Dry The Rain» by The The The Band and Ã e Ã, - Ã "Oh! Dutward Nuthin'Ã e Ã, - for the Velvet Underground. All that, while Rob tells the audience about the five best ruptures of him. In addition, Hulu recently adapted this story in the form of a television program located in the current day, Brooklyn, starring ZaÃf Ã«Kravitz like Rob. The real life of Kravitz, Lisa Bonet, played a role in the original film. The Segura Series has more diversity than the original film and it is worth observing many reasons, but the perfectly cured soundtrack is a big one. Now, what gene definition movies X should have added this list. More of ask.com ask.com
